Eckerd Theater Company at PACT, Inc.	The Hundred Dresses	Language Arts/Theater	3	The story of The Hundred Dresses is an endearing tale based on the book by Eleanor Estes. It focuses on the difficult issue of bullying and how mistreating someone because he or she is different from oneself brings as much harm to the bully as to the victim. It offers lessons on giving and forgiveness. Utilizing the study guides, students will have a heightened awareness of cultural diversity – Wanda Petronski's Polish parents came through Ellis Island. Although immigration has a much broader focus than those who came through Ellis Island station, the theater company chooses to highlight this station as an example of immigrant history in the United States. It is a memorable introduction to theater and an enhanced learning experience. Students will come to understand how the destructive practice of bullying affects a community as well as an individual, and that its negativity can extend to adulthood. Students can enjoy a live performance that relates to their curriculum, and form a lasting interest in theater, group learning and an awareness of the inevitable consequences of our actions.	8	Amaturo Theater	4,640	$10,000

Jenny's new friends quickly come to her rescue and they all discover "instruments" that they never knew existed...rubber duckies, trashcan lids and even their own laps! The characters teach children, and themselves that everyone has the ability to make beautiful music, whether they realize it or not. Don't miss this opportunity to count along with The Count, visit Elmo's World and do the Crumb-A-Rumba with Rosita and Cookie Monster.	1	Au-Rene Theater	1,446	$11,728.50
